LJUBLJANA DOCTORAL SUMMER SCHOOL

THE PERSUASIVE CHANGE LEADER

LJUBLJANA EXECUTIVE SUMMER SCHOOL

SLOVENIA

11-15 July 2016

This programme has been developed to respond to two significant challenges facing managers in organisations today - leading change and innovation. By exploring current research and best practice in change management and innovation, participants will develop a critical understanding of models and tools that can help them play a leadership role in these two vital areas. Uniquely, as part of this course, participants will provide Executive Mentoring for student groups from the regular Summer School which runs in parallel with the Executive Summer School. Teams of Executives from this course will work with these student groups to devise a solution to a real world strategic problem presented by a Slovenian organization. It is expected that participants will leave the programme not only with new knowledge and capabilities, but also with a renewed confidence in their own ability to lead change and develop the innovative capabilities of their organisations.

The objectives of this course are to contribute significantly to the development of a set of competencies that have been shown to be essential for leading change and innovation in today's organisations. These include the ability to adapt one's leadership style to changing contexts or needs of others; apply tools and concepts from research on change management and innovation to gain insights on complex organizational problems; and to coach and mentor a team from diverse backgrounds to deliver high performance under time pressure.

By the end of this course participants will have developed:

A critical understanding of the various models, approaches and methodologies that explain the management of change and innovation and an ability to apply these frameworks in different change contexts.

Experience in applying those concepts to complex, real world strategic issues

Enhanced awareness of their capabilities and responsibilities as organisational change and innovation leaders and greater confidence in proactively engaging with those dimensions of their leadership role

An appreciation of the skills of effective coaching and mentoring, as well as the organisational value and personal satisfaction to be gained from mentoring activities

The Faculty of Economics is the University of Ljubljana's largest member, with 6,000 full-time and part-time undergraduate and graduate students. Founded in 1946, the Faculty is an important pillar of the Slovenian research and business community. It has developed a strong international network with institutions worldwide. The Faculty was awarded the EQUIS and the AACSB accreditation. Both accreditations rank the Faculty among the best business schools.

The City of Ljubljana, the capital of Slovenia, is a relatively large central European city situated between the Alps and the Adriatic Sea and has approximately 300,000 inhabitants. It is the political and cultural heart of the Slovenian nation, safe and particularly charming in summer. It is a city of culture and a rich historical legacy which offers all the friendliness of a small town and at the same time everything that a capital city is expected to offer.

The Republic of Slovenia lies at the heart of Europe where the Alps face the Pannonian plains and the Mediterranean meets the mysterious Karst. In 1991 Slovenia declared its independence and began its transition from socialism to a market economy. It boasts stable GDP growth and is viewed as a safe country, being ranked among those countries with the lowest degree of risk. Slovenia joined the European Union in 2004 and introduced the euro in 2007.
